

SCOTTISH STORYTELLING CENTRE

EYE TO EYE, MIND TO MIND, HEART TO HEART

Welcome to the Scottish Storytelling Centre

Join us this August to celebrate 20 years of the Scottish Storytelling Centre! As the world's first purpose-built centre for oral storytelling, the SSC is a welcoming space for locals, families and visitors to meet and enjoy the wonder of stories.

This specially-curated Edinburgh Festival Fringe programme showcases the best in storytelling, music, theatre, spoken word and family shows from home-grown and international performers. Through mythology, folklore, story and song the programme explores the connections and common ground we share across time, language and culture while celebrating 20 years of the cèilidh atmosphere at the heart of the Scottish Storytelling Centre.

There's food in the eating place, drink in the drinking place, and stories in the listening place - it's all there waiting to be enjoyed!

JGPRODUCING

A play about imperfect Scots.

Bonnie's life has been defined by words; the right ones, the wrong ones, and the ones used against her. Now, Bonnie has a chance to speak about it. But she's not really sure what she's going to say, or how she's going to say it. A fast-paced, riotous one-person show exploring the impact of language, identity and their intersections in Scotland.

Iliad: The Song of Thetis

RACCONTAMIUNASTORIA STORYTELLING COMPANY

An incendiary retelling of Homer's Iliad, sung through the voice of Achilles' mother. Two performers fluidly shifting: god/mortal, mother/warrior, goddess/lover, masculine/feminine, collapsing the boundaries of gender, power and fate. Developed through international residencies and informed by artistic exchange with Lebanese and Palestinian artists working amid ongoing conflict, the production refuses nostalgia. Olympus is not distant; it is political, volatile, human.

Irrational

'The diagonal of the square is incommensurable with its side.'

Few words, but with unexpected implications. A number like this – neither whole nor fraction, thinkable but unknowable, wild, irrational – is a chaos element threatening the very order of things. The step from mathematics to heresy is short, and in Pythagoras' time, mathematics could cost you your life.

Step One

SHORT SUPPLY

One chair. One question. Sit with us for a moment.

In this gentle one-to-one encounter, you're invited to share an idea you've always wanted to try, but haven't yet. Step One is a quiet participatory artwork by Short Supply, exploring the moment before something begins. Each meeting lasts a few minutes and unfolds differently depending on who sits down. In the middle of the Edinburgh Fringe, this piece offers a pause from the noise.

The Corpse Road

DAN SERRIDGE & HEATHER CARTWRIGHT

Across northern England, roads wind their way through picturesque countryside. Ancient dry stone walls hold the stories of the dead that were carried past on these secret and haunted trails. Storyteller Daniel Serridge and musician Heather Cartwright weave together story and song in this evocative and unnerving folkloric journey to the grave.

The Flying

KIRSTY LAW

Enlightenment Edinburgh. Robert Burns and Walter Scott meet only once, at a salon in the Sciennes home of Adam Fergusson. Or so history tells us. In the School of Scottish Studies archives, a Scottish Traveller recounts another version – a fantastical gathering of 'all the great writers', locked in poetic flying – until tragedy strikes. Scots folksinger Kirsty Law weaves together fact, lore and memory into a meditation on truth, fiction and the ordinary people who quietly carry on Scotland's living tradition.

KIRSTEN MILLIKEN & DAVID HUGHES

The greatest stories have always opened our eyes, pricked our ears and loosened our tongues; not easy when the chaos makes us want to bury our heads.

Two traditional storytellers rally myths, legends and folk songs in this rousing call-to-arms. Now is the time to pull our heads from the sand, look darkness in the eye and make a stand.
